DRAMATIC SEA RESCUE COMPLETE

Lead In French Election Taken By RPF Forces

Communists Trail De Gaulle's Party

PARIS, Monday, Oct. 20 (P)—Gen. Charles De Gaulle's Rally of the French People (RPF) rolled up an early lead today in France's important municipal elections but did not dislodge its chief opponent—the communists.

Running for the first time in Sunday's balloting in cities and towns throughout the nation, De Gaulle's RPF received 823,027 or 36.30 per cent of the 2,267,801 votes counted.

The communists, on the other hand, polled 673,811 or 29.70 per cent. This total was approximately one per cent better than the communists had polled in previous balloting since the liberation. Thus far the tabulation showed that the communists were holding their ground in an election fought largely on Communist and anti-Communist grounds.

MRP Trailing Badly

Foreign Minister Georges Bidault's Popular Republican Movement (MRP) was trailing badly with only 252,240 votes or 11.45 per cent. The MRP got 25 per cent in the national elections last winter. This Catholic centrist party apparently was being squeezed between De Gaulle's Rally and the communists.

De Gaulle, the Free French leader of the war, had barnstormed the country in his pre-election campaign. His RPF ran for the first time in the Sunday balloting which was regarded as giving a new impetus to Communist and anti-Communist strength in the Fourth Republic.

The early returns showed the Rally was drawing many votes from Communist strongholds. Thus far the MRP apparently was not polling its usual strength.

In many places the communists generally were holding their ground. An exact comparison of Communist and anti-Communist strength with the 1945 municipal elections was impossible because of the numerous coalitions the communists then formed principally with the Radical-Socialists who now form an important part of De Gaulle's group. There was no anti-Communist coalition as such in the 1945 elections.

RPF Strong In Paris

De Gaulle's party was showing its greatest strength in Paris where the threat of a general strike dominated the election atmosphere. First tabulations in the capital gave the RPF more than 50 per cent of the vote counted. At Rennes, in contrast, the Rally's plurality was as high as 70 per cent.

The Ministry of Interior reported that out of 21,300 ballots counted in the Paris region in the Sunday balloting De Gaulle's Rally of the French People received 12,028 votes, the communists 5,494, the Socialists 1,860, and the MRP 1,219. The other votes went to miscellaneous parties.

The election held immediate importance in that it provided a measure of the popularity of the government of Socialist Premier Paul Ramadier, who excluded the communists from his Cabinet five months ago. If the communists break the ban on imperialistic maneuvering by Wall Street interests to involve Brazil, as Chile has been involved, in war provocations toward Russia.

The Brazilian government's announcement of the break was expected to be made tomorrow, but newspapers of the capital referred to it as an accomplished fact.

The Communist newspaper Tribuna Popular, still publishing despite the recent outlawing of the Communist Party in Brazil, called the break "an imperialistic maneuvering by Wall Street interests to involve Brazil, as Chile has been involved, in war provocations toward Russia."

Official Reaction To Petrillo Edict Is Slow In Coming

Ban On Recorded Music Announced

CHICAGO, Oct. 19 (P)—Radio networks and stations, disk manufacturers and others dealing in recorded music today pondered the impact of James C. Petrillo's announcement that all record making by union musicians will cease after December 31.

Official reaction, however, was slow in coming from most sources. One network official declared that "Americans love music. No individual can deprive them of it for long."

Petrillo, head of the AFL American Federation of Musicians, announced yesterday the union's executive board had decided "there will never be any more phonograph records or transcriptions made" by the AFL's 225,000 members after the ban takes effect.

The action was taken, he declared, because the musicians were "destroying themselves" by supplying their own competition in the form of recordings.

Mark Woods, president of the American Broadcasting Company, said in New York, "we feel that in the final analysis it will be the American people who will determine what they will hear and when and how they will hear it. Americans love music. No individual can deprive them of it for long."

No immediate impact of the musicians' unions decision was seen in the record industry by one of its long-time members in New York, who said "the big three—Columbia, RCA-Victor and Decca—have been making records so rapidly in recent months, both here and abroad, that they can continue to issue records for at least two years."

But, for transcribed radio shows featuring music, the ban would mean a change in production methods at least. Petrillo said the recording rule "doesn't mean we won't be willing to play at the broadcast of people who have been making program recordings. It just means we will play at the time the program is broadcast."

On the other hand, one local radio station disk jockey here described the Petrillo edict as "murder," adding that eventually "the public will be so sick and tired of hearing the records on our shelves, we'll have to fold up."

Cessation of new music recordings would mean that juke boxes would have to feature old favorites, and record sales over the counter for home use would be confined to old tunes.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Oct. 19 (P)—Civil and military aircraft, including United States service planes, were evacuated hastily from Bermuda today and two ships of the British fleet steamed 40 miles out to sea as tropical hurricanes moved northward toward the British colony from the South Atlantic.

Late reports said the hurricane would pass within 50 miles of Bermuda and that the colony would be hit by 100-mile-per-hour winds. The storm is expected to pass the island between 1 a. m. and 3 a. m. (EST) Monday.

Yesterday it began a slow curve to the northward and gradually veered to the northeast, at 14 to 15 miles per hour.

From the first, it was classed as "potentially dangerous" and later wind measurements confirmed the predictions.

Year-At-Time Aid Investment May Be Urged

Harriman's Group Working On Report

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (P)—A presidential advisory committee may urge that Congress be asked to make a single year's appropriation for economic aid to Europe without trying to set a final cost figure for the Marshall plan.

This was learned authoritatively today as the 19-member citizens group headed by Secretary of Commerce Harriman worked on its report of resources which this nation might safely utilize for foreign help. It is expected to reach President Truman the first week in November. Mr. Truman will utilize it and other studies in assembling recommendations to Congress.

Committee members said their report probably will include only a "rough guess" of the ultimate cost of American attempts to help Europe get itself back on an even economic keel—the goal of the Marshall plan.

Many Factors Involved

These members said it was the general understanding that the report may say that the United States can safely and wisely invest between $16,000,000,000 and $20,000,000,000 in the aid program over a course of years.

But they pointed out that the success or failure of European harvests, a possible increase in foreign coal production, fluctuations in prices and many other factors will so influence the need for aid that it would be unwise for Congress to set up any overall figure for a five-year program.

Some Republican leaders already have made it clear they want the European aid program placed on a year-to-year basis and would oppose any move to have the law figure such as that involved in the 16-county request for outside help of $22,440,000,000.

Meanwhile, speakers assailed and upheld the Marshall plan, which as advanced by Secretary of State Marshall envisions a program of United States aid to European countries on a self-help basis also. They had this to say:

"Grandiose World WPA"

1. Sen. Malone (R-Nev.) said it had "degenerated apparently into a grandiose world WPA." He opposed "using government money in the rehabilitation of industry."

As an alternative to this, Malone said private money and American experts were interested in such enterprises if foreign countries "would respect the integrity of investment."

2. Wendell Berge, former assistant attorney general, declared he is for the Marshall plan "unequivocally" as the only way to save Western Europe and this hemisphere from collapse.

Marshall Is Presented 1947 Freedom Award

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (P)—Secretary of State George C. Marshall today received the 1947 Freedom Award at a dinner at which more than 1,000 guests heard the Secretary's work in war and peace praised by international leaders.

Bernard M. Baruch, who received the award last year, presented the bronze plaque, traced Marshall's service in two wars and through years of peace and termed him "the permanent, written record of what to do (in war) and how to do it."

Prague, Oct. 19 (P)—Czechoslovakia's Social Democrats announced today they had merged into one national party, the nation's first, and would continue to fight any merger with the communists.

Heretofore, each party had Czech branches for Bohemia and Moravia and a Slovak branch.

A proclamation published by Pravo Lidu, the party's newspaper, announced the step. The merger brought Slovakia's Social Democrats out of hiding as a "Labor Party," and ended a month-long association with the communists, the dominant party, on economic and planning programs.

The Social Democrats of all Czechoslovakia, including the Slovak Labor Party members, polled 900,000 votes in the last election, and the communists 2,694,000 votes. The "Labor Party" tag was adopted by Slovak followers of the party under a wartime agreement with the communists, Social Democrats expressed hope they would now attract many Slovaks who voted for communists because they "did not know what a Labor Party was."

Plane Crash Kills Two

GLEN BURNIE, Md., Oct. 19 (P)—A primary trainer plane crashed into a field near here yesterday, killing both the pilot and a passenger.

George A. Thalberg, 25, Baltimore, who piloted B-29 Superfortresses for the Army, rode as a passenger in the rear cockpit of the plane, from which the dual controls had been removed.

Paul Dahms, 23, who was at the controls, died en route to the hospital.

HERO COMES HOME—Honey, I'm going to kiss you now" was what Capt. Paul B. Cronk, skipper of the Coast Guard cutter Bibb, exclaimed as he embraced his wife yesterday at Boston where his ship docked with 69 survivors of the "ditching" of the Bermuda Sky Queen.

Great Britain's House Of Lords May Be Junked

Attlee's Cabinet Decides Fate Today

LONDON, Oct. 19 (P)—Informed labor sources said tonight Britain's Labor government may strip the nobility of its last vestiges of legislative power this winter to prevent any blocking of the industrial nationalization program.

Prime Minister Attlee's Cabinet will decide finally tomorrow whether King George VI, in opening a new session of Parliament Tuesday, will call for legislation to junk the House of Lords as a body of hereditary lawmakers, these informants said.

King Does Ministers Bidding

The King, by hard-won custom, says what his ministers tell him to say and the House of Commons, with a heavy Labor majority, almost certainly would do the government's bidding.

A highly-placed government official said he could not confirm or deny that immediate action against the Lords was planned. He observed, however, that Attlee's Cabinet is known to have discussed the issue frequently in the past.

Two Sunday newspapers, the pro-government Reynolds News and Viscount Astor's Observer, played up unattributed stories that quick action was contemplated.

The reports were directly related to the government's policy on nationalizing the steel industry.

May Defer Nationalization

Steel nationalization originally was scheduled for this session. There have been reports, however, that the government might postpone it for a year. The Cabinet is known to feel that steel production, vital in the British economic crisis, might suffer during a period of transition from private to public ownership.

If nationalization was deferred until 1948, the predominantly conservative House of Lords would be in a position to block it entirely until after the next general election, due in 1950. Under British procedure, it takes two years for the Commons to make a law over the veto of the peers.

Movie Probe Committee Will Be Asked To Quash Subpoenas Against 19

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (P)—Attorneys for 19 Hollywood actors, writers and producers announced today they will ask the House Un-American Activities Committee to quash subpoenas against their clients when the committee opens its movie investigation tomorrow.

The announcement was made at a news conference by Robert W. Kenny and five associates representing the 19 prospective witnesses in the committee probe of alleged Communism in Hollywood.

Kenny indicated that should the committee override his motion, the case might be taken to the federal courts since, he contended, it involves a violation of constitutional rights.

Kenny, former attorney general of California, said he assumed the committee will hear his motion. He was not prepared to say what he will do if the committee refuses to recognize him to make it.

Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R-N.J.) already has announced that attorneys will not be permitted to testify or make statements but will be limited to advising witnesses.

Regardless of what happens, Kenny said, he will not advise his clients to refuse to testify but will instruct them to "tally and frankly answer those pertinent questions which are constitutional."

$3,000 Offered By Black Market For Wedding Bids

Says She Feared She Would Go Mad

LONDON, Oct. 19 (P)—Word has gotten around London that black marketeers have offered as much as £750 ($3,000) each for invitations to the marriage of Princess Elizabeth and Lt. Philip Mountbatten November 20.

Presumably they would wish to sell at a profit.

But precautions are being taken. It is unlikely they will contrive to get even one for the ceremony in Westminster Abbey.

USSR Substitutes Boycott For Veto To Hamstring U.N.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (P)—The latest Soviet tactics of boycotting new commissions or organs which they can't talk down or vote down in the General Assembly threatened today to minimize the authority of United Nations decisions.

Refusal of Russia and her satellites to participate in the work of the Balkan watchdog commission and strong indications of a similar attitude toward Secretary of State Marshall's proposed year-around Assembly amounts to a new version of the veto.

No Veto In Assembly

The veto itself applies in the Security Council, where Russia and any of the other great powers can block a decision of the majority merely by its application. The Assembly, which has no veto provision, can only make recommendations to member countries and the refusal of any group of nations to implement such recommendations means that effectiveness is reduced.

For instance, Russia has made it clear that none of the Soviet satellites can be expected to co-operate with the Balkan commission, on grounds it is "illegal." This would mean that any Assembly commission going into the Balkans would have to confine its on-the-spot investigation to Greece alone and with no opportunity to cross the borders into Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria, the three countries accused of aiding Greek guerrillas fighting the Athens regime.

Greek Case Coming Up

The Greek case will come up for final decision on the Assembly floor tomorrow as delegates move back to Flushing Meadow for plenary sessions. Two resolutions are scheduled for discussion, including the American proposal for setting up the watchdog commission. It is days after the end of this Assembly. The United States plan was approved 36 to 6 with only the Soviet bloc opposed in the 57-nation Political Committee and forwarded to the floor. It needs a two-thirds majority of those present and voting to pass.

War Profits Inquiry Will Open Tomorrow

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (P)—A Senate probe into the possibility that "some privileged industries" piled up "excessive war profits" will open Tuesday.

The quotations come from Chairman Brewster (R-Me.) of the Senate War Investigating Committee, who announced today that seven wartime government officials will be asked about contract renegotiations.

The chairman said there have been numerous complaints "that legal exemptions in connection with renegotiating contracts of some privileged industries may have been responsible for the accumulation of excessive war profits."

This was the finding of Carl Dolan, a professional staff member for the Senate's Aviation Subcommittee.

Dolan's report, which he made after listening to testimony taken by the Civil Aeronautics Board and making an independent check, added that "what actually happened, and when, will apparently never be determined."

Dolan did say that "faulty maintenance and inspection were involved in this accident."

The CAB, in a preliminary report on the crash on July 1, found that

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (P)—Screams of babies tearing "every mother's heart to pieces," and possible madness threatening the women aboard the transatlantic clipper Bermuda Sky Queen tossing on the stormy North Atlantic were described today by Mrs. Albert Ritchie, Andover, New Brunswick, Canada, one of the 69 persons rescued from the plane.

She told of the rescue of her own 3-year-old son, Gordon, and of "ten thousand goodbyes with our eyes."

"Every creak of the plane—every sound of the sea—told that it was too late now. I put up every prayer I knew," Mrs. Ritchie said in an eyewitness account received by radio by the Coast Guard here from the rescue cutter Bibb as it was en route to Boston.

Visualized Plane Sinking

"I was not ready to die," said Mrs. Ritchie, one of the first group rescued from the airship which made a forced landing last Tuesday 800 miles off Newfoundland.

"I was scared stiff," she said. "I visualized the plane sinking—the babies drowning—my baby drowning. Those hours we waited for death. My hands were pressed tightly together. The whole time, I believe there seemed to be no escape from the plane—not even jumping out into the sea with a chance to swim for our lives."

"Our 3-year-old son, Gordon, spent hours on his father's knee—just watching the waves slapping the plane and never saying a word," Mrs. Ritchie said.

Wanted To Go Back

"At the last minute (before rescue), I found that my husband and Gordon were assigned to the next trip. I had not said goodbye. I wanted to go back but then, what point in it? We had said ten thousand goodbyes with our eyes that day."

(A score of men and one woman had to remain on the stricken plane overnight in the stormy sea before all 69 were rescued by the Bibb.)

"If any woman and children had been left on board overnight," said Mrs. Ritchie, "if we had had to sit there and watch the darkness, and hear every crashing wave and every creak and groan of the plane, I and all the other women I have talked to would probably have gone mad."

Fliers Reach Tokyo

TOKYO, Oct. 19 (P)—Clifford V. Evans and George W. Truman landed their tiny Cub planes at Tokyo's Haneda airfield this afternoon and said they intended to ask Russian permission for emergency landings in the Kuriles, if necessary, on the forthcoming longest hop of their leisurely around-the-world journey.

"This was the finding of Carl Dolan, a professional staff member for the Senate's Aviation Subcommittee."

Dolan's report, which he made after listening to testimony taken by the Civil Aeronautics Board and making an independent check, added that "what actually happened, and when, will apparently never be determined."

Dolan did say that "faulty maintenance and inspection were involved in this accident."

The CAB, in a preliminary report on the crash on July 1, found that

"some unit or assembly" failed in the tail of the airliner, which went into a dive in clear weather near Bainbridge, Md., on a flight from New York to Miami.

New York's findings appear to differ from those of Chairman Brewster (R-Me.) of the Aviation Subcommittee, who said the Dolan report "indicated structural failures were the chief cause."

On this point the report stated: "Disintegration occurring after the plane went into a vertical, full engine dive and at a maximum designed speed (terminal velocity), such as might have been the cause of the separation of the tail assembly of the plane just before it struck the ground, would annual the theory of structural failure."

69 Survivors Of "Ditched" Plane Landed

Passengers Praise Saviors, Ask Probe

BOSTON, Oct. 19 (P)—A rescue that will live in sea history was completed today when the Coast Guard cutter Bibb landed the 69 survivors of the "ditched" transatlantic airliner Bermuda Sky Queen to receive a heroes' welcome.

But high praise for coast guardsmen and others who effected the rescue 800 miles off Newfoundland last Tuesday was mixed with demands from passengers for an investigation of the plane's forced landing in rough seas.

At least a half dozen of the rescued protested the plane was overcrowded and some said there was a shortage of safety belts.

Along with the cheering crowds that greeted the Bibb at the Constitution Wharf pier—a crowd resembling those that hailed returning troop ships—were investigators of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

One of the rescued, William Bostock, Shell Oil Company employee, said a declaration was signed by all but three of the plane's adult passengers asking "why planes of this type are allowed to fly."

Triumphal Procession

The Bibb's arrival was a triumphal procession from the harbor entrance to Constitution Wharf as she took the salutes of pleasure craft, merchant ships and fishing vessels and was greeted by an official Boston welcoming party. Plumes of water shot from fireboats and planes circled and dipped overhead.

The Red Cross was on hand to provide food, clothing, medical aid and even devotion to the passengers. Many were greeted by relatives and friends and hurried to private homes or quarters.

The Bibb's dock lists were hardly ashore before a citation from the Secretary of the Treasury was brought aboard, praising her crew for "skill, courage, seamanship and unwavering devotion to duty in one of the most daring rescues in maritime history."

But Capt. Paul B. Cronk declined to accept all the compliments for the coast guardsmen, asserting much of the credit should go to Capt. Charles Martin, Miami, Fla., pilot of the wrecked plane, and to the nine merchant mariners who were passengers on the plane. In this he was supported by the Bibb's crew and the survivors.

The rescued marched down the gangplank expressing their gratitude at reaching safety—and adding that they were unable to find words with which to thank sufficiently the crew of the Bibb, many of whom risked their own lives in saving the air travelers.

The rescued were transferred from the sinking airplane in heavy seas without injury or loss of a single life.

Hearing Set For Oct. 30

Capt. Cronk gave a laconic report on the performance of his crew. "Everyone did his job."

But Cronk's nine-year-old daughter, Nan, at the pier with her mother, brother and sister, piped up: "Oh, Daddy, I see you got a new medal!"

Capt. Cronk and several of his officers and crewmen have been officially cited, and award of medals to several has been recommended.

A party of Civil Aeronautics Board officials interviewed the crew of the downed plane, and announced that a public hearing would open October 30 in New York to seek to determine the physical reasons for the forced landing.

Two Sailors Arrested After Crash-Landing

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 19 (P)—State police tonight announced the arrest of two sailors who crash landed near here after a flight from Annapolis, Md., in a private plane owned by a naval officer.

They identified the youths as Joseph Gionet, 19, and Robert Naylor, 23, (addresses unavailable), both stationed aboard the decommissioned aircraft carrier Block Island. Neither was hurt.

Police said they had taken a training plane belonging to Lt. Donald E. Walport, also stationed aboard the carrier.

"some unit or assembly" failed in the tail of the airliner, which went into a dive in clear weather near Bainbridge, Md., on a flight from New York to Miami.

New York's findings appear to differ from those of Chairman Brewster (R-Me.) of the Aviation Subcommittee, who said the Dolan report "indicated structural failures were the chief cause."

Brazil-Russia Break Due Today; Police On Alert

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 19 (AP)—Federal police on the alert today to prevent demonstrations or sabotage on the eve of the anticipated break of diplomatic relations between Brazil and Russia.

The Brazilian government's announcement of the break was expected to be made tomorrow, but the papers of the capital referred to it as an accomplished fact.

The Communist newspaper Tribuna Popular, still publishing despite the recent outlawing of the Communist Party in Brazil, called the break "an imperialist maneuver by Wall Street interest to involve Brazil, as Chile has been involved, in war provocations toward Russia."

Severe Hurricane, With Winds Well Over 100 MPH, Heading For Bermuda

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 19 (AP)—A "large, intense" hurricane continued its northward course in the Atlantic tonight, accompanied by winds described as well over 100 miles per hour.

The Weather Bureau said, in a 10:15 p. m. (EST) advisory, that the hurricane was centered about 240 miles west-southwest of Bermuda, moving northeastward about 18 miles per hour.

Little change is expected in the direction, rate of movement or intensity during the next few hours, the Weather Bureau said.

Airplane observers estimated the wind velocity near the center during the afternoon as well over 100 miles an hour but the storm apparently had increased its forward rate of movement from 15 to 18 miles an hour.

From the first, it was classed as "potentially dangerous" and later wind measurements confirmed the predictions.

Poultrymen, Food Committee To Meet

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (AP)—The Citizens Food Committee appeared ready tonight to abandon poultryless Thursdays if it sets strong assurances of grain-saving co-operation for poultrymen and the feed industry in sessions starting tomorrow.

Officials indicated to reporters that any such decision probably would include lifting of the voluntary Thursday ban on eggs also, but this was less certain because egg production is seasonally down and storage supplies have declined.

Committee officials emphasized their belief that Chairman Charles Luckman would not yield on the chickenless day, however, unless poultry raisers and the makers and sellers of poultry feed offer specific conservation measures to further the committee's goal—100,000,000 additional bushels of grain for Europe this winter.

Meeting Expanded

The meeting, originally scheduled to bring only leaders of the National Poultry Producers Federation to Washington, was expanded by Luckman last week to include the American Feed Manufacturers Association and the Grain and Feed Dealers Association.

Meanwhile the committee announced that a "day of reminder" of Europe's need will be held—probably on the Sunday before Thanksgiving in all Protestant churches.

The observance was arranged tentatively in an exchange of messages between Luckman and Charles P. Taft, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

Taft said the voluntary food campaign merited "the full and active support of every American citizen." He reported he was urging leaders of all communities, and all city and state councils of churches, to enlist members in "a vigorous effort to secure conscientious observance of the rules which their government has asked the American people to impose upon themselves."

In a replaying message of appreciation, Luckman suggested a "simultaneous mention" of all churches on a specific Sunday of the desperate need in Europe. "Taft sent assurances that the federal council would call on its churches to transmit such a message, the exact date to be chosen soon."

Fowl 'Dammed Up On Farms'

In Albany, N. Y., Thomas E. Dewey's administration virtually urged abandonment of poultryless Thursdays in an appeal to the public to eat more low producing fowl as a grain saving measure.

Dr. Herman E. Hilleboe, chairman of Dewey's recently created State Food Commission, said in a statement that "an abnormally large number of low producing fowl are being raised on farms, eating large amounts of grains, which birds should be moved to market."

Hilleboe said that more than a million such birds were consuming approximately 100,000 bushels of feed a month.

At the food commission chairman made no direct reference to President Truman's poultryless Thursday program, a source close to Dewey said the Hilleboe statement plainly indicated the Governor favored a different approach from that of Washington.

Czech National Party Is Founded

PRAGUE, Oct. 19 (AP)—Czechoslovakia's Social Democrats announced today they had merged into one national party, the nation's first, and would continue to fight any merger with the communists.

Heretofore, each party had had Czech branches for Bohemia and Moravia and a Slovak branch.

A proclamation published by Pravo Lidu, the party's newspaper, announced the step. The merger brought Slovakia's Social Democrats out of hiding as "Labor Party," and ended a month-long association with the communists, the dominant party, on economic and planning programs.

The Social Democrats of all Czechoslovakia, including the Slovak Labor Party members, polled 900,000 votes in the last election, and the communists 2,694,000 votes. The "Labor Party" tag was adopted by Slovak followers of the party under a wartime agreement with the communists. Social Democrats expressed surprise that the Slovaks who voted for communists because they "did not know what a Labor Party was."

Plane Crash Kills Two

GLEN BURNIE, Md., Oct. 19 (AP)—A primary trainer plane crashed into a field near here yesterday, killing both the pilot and a passenger.

George A. Thalberg, 25, Baltimore, who piloted B-29 Superforts for the Army, rode as a passenger in the rear cockpit of the plane, from which the dual controls had been removed.

Paul Dahms, 23, who was at the controls, died en route to the hospital.

Year-At-Time Aid Investment May Be Urged

Harriman's Group Working On Report

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (AP)—A presidential advisory committee may urge that Congress be asked to make a single year's appropriation for economic aid to Europe without trying to set a final cost figure for the Marshall plan.

This was learned authoritatively today as the 19-member citizens group headed by Secretary of Commerce Henry C. Harriman worked on its report of resources, which this nation might safely utilize for foreign help. It is expected to reach President Truman the first week in November. Mr. Truman will utilize it and other studies in assembling recommendations to Congress.

Committee members said their report probably will include only a "rough guess" of the ultimate cost of American attempts to help Europe get itself back on an even economic keel—the goal of the Marshall plan.

Many Factors Involved

These members said it was the general understanding that the report may say that the United States can safely and wisely invest between $16,000,000,000 and $20,000,000,000 in the aid program over a course of years.

But they pointed out that the success or failure of European harvests, a possible increase in foreign coal production, fluctuations in prices and many other factors will so influence the need for aid that it would be unwise for Congress to set up any overall figure for a five-year program.

Some Republican leaders already have made it clear they want the European aid program placed on a year-to-year basis and would oppose any move to have the lawmakers pass now on a long range figure such as that involved in the 16-country request for outside help of $22,440,000,000.

Meanwhile, speakers assailed and upheld the Marshall plan, which as advanced by Secretary of State Marshall envisions a program of United States aid to European countries on a self-help basis also. They had this to say:

"Grandiose World WPA"

1. Sen. Malone (R-Nev.) said it had "degenerated apparently into grandiose world WPA." He opposed "using government money in the rehabilitation of industry."

As an alternative to this, Malone said private money and American experts were interested in such enterprises. If foreign countries could respect the integrity of investments.

2. Wendell Berge, former assistant attorney general, declared he was for the Marshall plan "unquestionably" as the only way to save Western Europe and this hemisphere from collapse.

Marshall Is Presented 1947 Freedom Award

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (AP)—Secretary of State George C. Marshall tonight received the 1947 Freedom Award at a dinner at which more than 1,000 guests heard the Secretary's work in war and peace praised by international leaders.

Bernard M. Baruch, who received the award last year, presented the bronze plaque, traced Marshall's service in two wars and through years of peace, and termed him "the first global strategist" who "left a permanent, written record of what to do (in war) and how to do it."

Movie Probe Committee Will Be Asked To Quash Subpoenas Against 19

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (AP)—Attorneys for 19 Hollywood actors, writers and producers announced today they will ask the House Un-American Activities Committee to quash subpoenas against their clients when the committee opens its movie investigation tomorrow.

The announcement was made at a news conference by Robert W. Akers, one of the attorneys, who said the 19 prospective witnesses in the committee probe of alleged Communism in Hollywood.

Kenny indicated that should the committee overrule his motion, the case might be taken to the federal courts since, he contended, it involves a violation of constitutional rights.

Kenny, former attorney general of California, said he assumed the committee will hear his motion. He was not prepared to say what he would do if the committee refuses to recognize him to make it.

Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R-NJ) already has announced that attorneys will not be permitted to testify or make statements but will be limited to advising witnesses.

Regardless of what happens, Kenny said, he will not advise his clients to refuse to testify but will instruct them to "fully and frankly answer those pertinent questions which are constitutional."

Thomas said he hopes to show, during two or three weeks of questioning of movie bigwigs, that communists have obtained a foothold in the movie industry and are using the flickers to spread their doctrine.

In downtown Washington, the vanguard of a score of witnesses conferred with their counsel, chief of whom is Paul V. McNutt, while the National Lawyers Guild, which has been at loggerheads with the committee for some time, called a press conference and scheduled an "open meeting" for tomorrow night.

Thomas has called three witnesses for the opening day: Jack Warner, Sam Wood and Louis B. Mayer. The actors themselves, he said, probably won't be called until Thursday and will be heard at the rate of "three or four a day."

HERO COMES HOME

Honey, I'm going to kiss you now" was what Capt. Paul B. Cronk, skipper of the Coast Guard cutter Bibb, exclaimed as he embraced his wife yesterday at Boston where his ship docked with 69 survivors of the "ditching" of the Bermuda Sky Queen.

Great Britain's House Of Lords May Be Junked

Attlee's Cabinet Decides Fate Today

LONDON, Oct. 19 (AP)—Informed labor sources said tonight Britain's Labor government may strip the nobility of its last vestiges of legislative power this winter to prevent any blocking of the industrial nationalization program.

Prime Minister Attlee's Cabinet will decide finally tomorrow whether King George VI, in opening a new session of Parliament Tuesday, will call for legislation to junk the House of Lords as a body of hereditary lawmakers, these informants said.

King Does Ministers Bidding

The King, by hard-won custom, says what his ministers tell him to say and the House of Commons, with a heavy Labor majority, most certainly would do the government's bidding.

A highly-placed government official said he could not confirm or deny that immediate action against the lords was planned. He observed, however, that Attlee's Cabinet is known to have discussed the issue frequently in the past.

Two Sunday newspapers, the pro-government Reynolds News and Viscount Astor's Observer, played up unattributed stories that quick action was contemplated.

The reports were directly related to the government's policy on nationalizing the steel industry.

May Defer Nationalization

Steel nationalization originally was scheduled for this session. There have been reports, however, that the government might postpone it for a year. The Cabinet is known to feel that steel production, vital in the British economic crisis, might suffer during a period of transition from private to public ownership.

If nationalization was deferred until 1948, the predominantly conservative House of Lords would be in a position to block it entirely until after the next general election, set for 1950. Under British procedure, it takes two years for the Commons to make a law over the veto of the peers.

Kenny and his associates said they represent Larry Parks, actor; Lewis Milestone, director; Dalton Trumbo, Albert Maltz, John Howard Lawson, Ring Lardner, Jr., Alvah Bessie, Lester Cole, Richard Collins, Gordon Kahn, Howard Koch, Robert Rossen and Waldo Salt, writers; Edward Dmytryk, Adolphe Menjou, Herbert Biberman, Saul Zaentz and Irving Pichel, directors; and Bertold Brecht, dramatist.

Thomas said he hopes to show, during two or three weeks of questioning of movie bigwigs, that communists have obtained a foothold in the movie industry and are using the flickers to spread their doctrine.

In downtown Washington, the vanguard of a score of witnesses conferred with their counsel, chief of whom is Paul V. McNutt, while the National Lawyers Guild, which has been at loggerheads with the committee for some time, called a press conference and scheduled an "open meeting" for tomorrow night.

$3,000 Offered By Black Market For Wedding Bids

LONDON, Oct. 19 (AP)—Word has gotten around London that black marketeers have offered as much as £750 ($3,000) each for invitations to the marriage of Princess Elizabeth and Lt. Philip Mountbatten, November 20. Presumably they would wish to resell at a profit.

But precautions are being taken. It is unlikely they will contrive to get even one for the ceremony in Westminster Abbey.

USSR Substitutes Boycott For Veto To Hamstring U.N.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (AP)—The latest Soviet tactic of boycotting new commissions or organs which they can't talk down or vote down in the General Assembly threatened today to minimize the authority of United Nations decisions.

Refusal of Russia and her satellites to participate in the work of the Balkan commission, on grounds it is "illegal." This would mean that any Assembly commission going into the Balkans would have to confine its on-the-spot investigation to Greece alone and with no opportunity to cross the borders into Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria, the three countries accused of aiding Greek guerrillas fighting the Athens regime.

The Greek case coming up for final decision on the Assembly floor tomorrow as delegates move back to Flushing Meadows for plenary sessions. Two resolutions are scheduled for discussion, including the American proposal for setting up the watchdog commission. 15 days after the end of this Assembly.

The United States plan was approved 36 to 6 with only the Soviet bloc opposed in the 57-nation Political Committee and forwarded to the floor. It needs a two-thirds majority of those present and voting to pass.

War Profits Inquiry Will Open Tomorrow

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (AP)—A Senate probe into the possibility that "some privileged industries" piled up "excessive war profits" will open Tuesday.

The quotations come from Chairman Brewster (R-Me.), of the Senate War Investigating Committee, who announced today that seven wartime government officials will be asked about contract renegotiations.

The chairman said there have been numerous complaints "that legal exemptions in connection with the separation of the tail assembly of the plane just before it struck the ground, would annual the theory of structural failure."

Dolan did say that "faulty maintenance and inspection were involved in this accident."

The CAB, in a preliminary report on the crash on July 1, found that

"some unit or assembly" failed in the tail of the airliner, which went into a dive in clear weather near Bainbridge, Md., on a flight from New York to Miami.

Dolan's findings appear to differ from those of Chairman Brewster (R-Me.), of the Aviation Subcommittee, who said the Dolan report "indicated structural failures were the chief cause."

On this point the report stated: "Disintegration occurring after the plane went into a vertical, full engine dive and at a maximum designed speed (terminal velocity), such as might have been the cause of the separation of the tail assembly of the plane just before it struck the ground, would annual the theory of structural failure."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (AP)—A Senate probe of the crash of an Eastern Airlines plane on May 30 which killed 59 persons found today that "faulty inspection may have been the cause."

This was the finding of Carl Dolan, professional staff member for the Senate's Aviation Subcommittee.

Dolan's report, which he made after listening to testimony taken by the Civil Aeronautics Board and making an independent check, added that "what actually happened, and when, will apparently never be determined."

Dolan did say that "faulty maintenance and inspection were involved in this accident."

69 Survivors Of "Ditched" Plane Landed

Passengers Praise Saviors, Ask Probe

BOSTON, Oct. 19 (AP)—A rescue that will live in sea history was completed today when the Coast Guard cutter Bibb landed the 69 survivors of the "ditched" transatlantic airliner Bermuda Sky Queen to receive a heroes' welcome.

But high praise for coast guardsmen and others who effected the rescue 800 miles off Newfoundland last Tuesday was mixed with demands from passengers for an investigation of the plane's forced landing in rough seas.

At least a half dozen of the rescued protested the plane was overcrowded and some said there was a shortage of safety belts.

Along with the cheering crowds that greeted the Bibb at the Constitution Wharf pier a crowd resembling those that hailed returning troop ships—were investigators of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

One of the rescued, William Boslock, Shell Oil Company employee, said a declaration was signed by all but three of the plane's adult passengers asking "why planes of this type are allowed to fly."

Triumphal Procession

The Bibb's arrival was a triumphal procession from the harbor entrance to Constitution Wharf as she took the salutes of pleasure craft, merchant ships and fishing vessels and was greeted by an official Boston welcoming party. Plumes of water shot from fireboats, and planes circled and dipped overhead.

The Red Cross was on hand to provide food, clothing, medical aid and even funds for the passengers. Many were greeted by relatives and friends and hurried to private homes or quarters.

The Bibb's dock lines were hardly ashore before a citation from the Secretary of the Treasury was brought aboard, praising her crew for "skill, courage, seamanship and unwavering devotion to duty in one of the most daring rescues in maritime history."

But Capt. Paul B. Cronk declined to accept all the compliments for the coast guardsmen, asserting much of the credit should go to Capt. Charles Martin, Miami, Fla., pilot of the wrecked plane, and to the nine merchant mariners who were passengers on the plane. In this he was supported by the Bibb's crew and the survivors.

The rescued marched down the gangplank expressing their gratitude at reaching safety—and adding that they were unable to find words with which to thank sufficiently the crew of the Bibb, many of whom risked their own lives in saving the air travelers.

The rescued were transferred from the sinking airplane in heavy seas without injury or loss of a single life.

Hearing Set For Oct. 30

Capt. Cronk gave a laconic report on the performance of his crew. "Everyone did his job."

But Cronk's nine-year-old daughter, Nan, at the pier with her mother, brother and sister, piped up: "Oh, Daddy, I see you did a new medal!"

Capt. Cronk and several of his officers and crewmen have been officially cited, and award of medals to several has been recommended.

A party of Civil Aeronautics Board officials interviewed the crew of the downed plane and announced that a public hearing would open October 30 in New York "to seek to determine the physical reasons for the forced landing."

Two Sailors Arrested After Crash-Landing

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 19 (AP)—State police tonight announced the arrest of two sailors who crash landed near here after a flight from Annapolis, Md., in a private plane owned by a naval officer.

They identified the youths as Joseph Gionet, 19, and Robert Maylor, 23, (addresses unavailable), both stationed aboard the decommissioned aircraft carrier Block Island. Neither was hurt.

Police said they had taken a training plane belonging to Lt. Donald E. Walpole, also stationed aboard the carrier.

The Birthday that Tommy tried to forget!

Many of today's homes are made unhappy by too great a burden of debt . . . yet, as this authoritative article shows, there is a way out

by MISS CORNELIA DUNPHY,
Home Economist for Community Service
Society of New York

LITTLE TOMMY is a tearful witness that the best solution to the high cost of living is not to borrow money . . . or to accept all the credit that one can get. The best thing to do if you are too deep in debt is to get out. It's hard, but it can be done.

Tommy's father, let's call him Mr. Spencer, came to us a while back for advice. In spite of a better-than-average job, his family was in trouble from one debt piled on top of another

How to PLAN for Family Happiness

• Planning to get out of debt is only part of sound money planning. You'll be more likely to have enough money on hand when you need it, if you'll follow these few simple rules:

FOR TODAY... The first thing, for most families, is to take care of the larger fixed items such as rent, taxes, insurance, mortgage and installment payments, etc.

So start by adding up all your fixed items for the year, divide by 52, and set aside that amount weekly.

Also, every family should have a "rainy day" fund equal to at least four weeks' income. Set aside a little every week until you have that much. Then, you'll know how much you can spend for food, clothing, heat, light, amusements, and so forth.

Work it out together!

Smouldering Cigaret Causes Blaze In Home

Central Fire Company said a smouldering cigarette was responsible for the blaze which filled the home of Julius Morton, 416 North Mechanic Street, with smoke early Saturday morning and drove the family from the home.

Firemen said a neighbor pulled the alarm and that shouts of neighbors awakened four children who fled from the building. Morton was asleep and had to be routed from his bed, fire fighters said. Extensive damage to a living room suite and rug resulted from the blaze.

Fire Chief Recommends

Firemen stated little trouble is experienced from that type of chimney. The fact that the glazed surface offers soot no chance to collect is a useful feature in addition to the safety factor.

Better results will be obtained from any heating plant, firemen said, if flues are kept clean, for if a fire does not draw, there is little hope to keep the fuel burning efficiently.

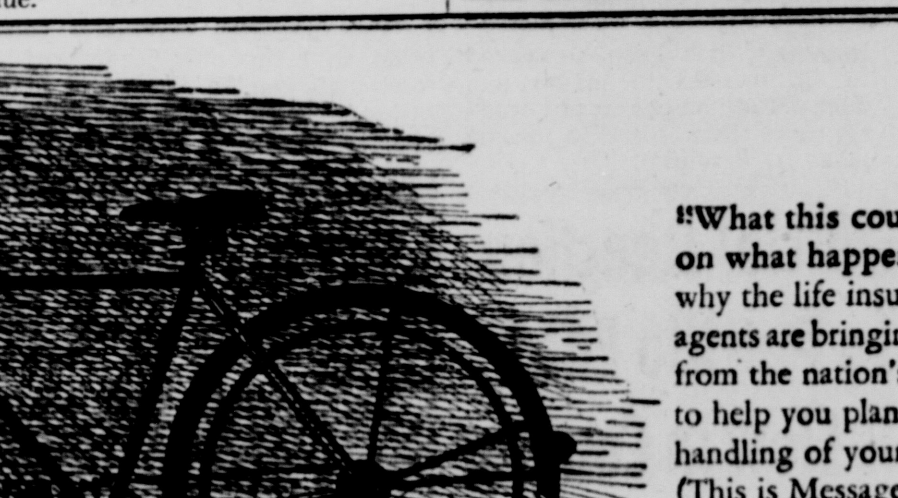

From a safety standpoint, clean flues in good repair are even more important, for the danger of carbon monoxide poisoning is ever present, no matter what heating system you have, unless all the products of incomplete combustion are carried off by flues.

The treacherous gas is even more dangerous during winter when windows and doors are kept tightly closed. Then, if soot and dirt in the chimneys plugs the flue and prevents the fuel from burning completely, or the heating appliance has not been vented through a flue, carbon monoxide may strike.

Since it is odorless, colorless and tasteless, no warning is given, but any escaping fumes may serve as a warning signal.

If you did it the easy way, your heating contractor has already checked the operation of your heating plant and has made sure that all flues are in operating condition.

Modern heating concerns do the job with an oversize vacuum cleaner which whisks all the dirt from your heating system—and from the flue.

"What this country amounts to depends on what happens to its homes. . . . That's why the life insurance companies and their agents are bringing you this series of messages from the nation's foremost authorities; to help you plan for happiness in the handling of your family money! (This is Message Number 23:)" to take money from one fixed payment, such as rent, insurance, taxes, to pay another.

But this doesn't mean halfway measures will do. Ask yourself if it isn't worth more to your peace of mind to get out of the hole you're in than merely to escape the worry with extravagant amusements . . . See if you really haven't enough clothes and household supplies to get by on for a while . . . Get the whole family to agree that it's possible to economize on food and still eat well.

Third: Set aside a definite sum each week for paying off debts, and make it as large as possible. The longer it takes to get out of debt; the worse it is for your family. But remember, even if the process is slow, make it steady and consistent. . . . And discuss your plan with your creditors—let them know you're trying.

debt, from loans taken out to pay other loans.

Mr. Spencer had not fully realized how badly off he was until one day, in order to meet a payment penalty date, he found himself forced to take the money he'd put aside to buy Tommy a bicycle for his birthday. Tommy tried manfully to understand, but it wasn't much of a birthday!

In general, we gave Mr. Spencer the same advice we would give to most families: To get out of debt, First: Add up all your debts and face the total. Second: Write down your running expenses, and see where you can cut down.

Don't rob Peter to pay Paul by attempting

But most people, firemen said, do the job themselves as an annual chore. There are a great many ways to accomplish the job, but here is one of the easiest.

Take a burlap sack filled with a few bricks and drop this by rope down the chimney for a few times to remove all the loose soot. Remember, however, that you must remove that soot and dirt from the bottom of the chimney.

Even if a clean-out door is provided in the bottom of the chimney, the pipe to the furnace should be cleaned since considerable soot may collect there, firemen said. Gas coal seems to be the worst offender from the standpoint of soot.

Another very effective method is to drop a pair of old time chains down the flue for a few times since the chains will knock loose practically all of the soot which is clinging to the bricks.

Others put their faith in cleaning sticks which are sold commercially

Rep. Beall Reveals Stand On American Aid To Europe

Representative J. Glenn Beall's forthright stand on the question of aid to Europe, as disclosed in a statement he issued several days ago, furnishes much food for thought. The Sixth District Congressman, while calling for cooperation in assisting European nations, voiced opposition to any form of "international WPA," and rightly so.

While admitting that the United States "can't sit back and shut itself off from the rest of the world," Mr. Beall is of the opinion that European countries should show they are making every effort to help themselves. He added, "I don't like the idea of a worldwide WPA," and observed that "everybody over the world seems to be waiting for a handout from us."

Rep. Beall is biding his time on the entire issue of aid for Europe until he has had an opportunity to study the report from congressional committees which have been investigating conditions in Europe. He intends, very wisely, to withhold any decision on how he will vote on the question to come, sooner or later, before Congress.

Rep. Beall's constituents will welcome this news of his intentions to await a careful study before committing himself on the Marshall Plan. He is of the opinion that any future loan to European nations should carry the proviso requiring the recipient countries "to help themselves" and not depend solely on aid from Uncle Sam.

Such an attitude is an indication that he, for one, does not intend to give assurances to President Truman of quick action on the Marshall Plan in return for foregoing a special session of Congress. The President is not likely to receive such a guarantee from any Republicans. Nor should he receive them.

The problem of aid to Western Europe is not one that can be solved in a week or a month. There is no agreement in this country on the type or quality of assistance or on the manner of administering it, as Mr. Beall so aptly points out. These are questions that require extended study and that are certain to provoke long debate.

The fact is that few Americans, perhaps none, know precisely what America ought to do for Europe or how it ought to be done. The Administration must bear the responsibility for this confusion. It urges adoption of the Marshall Plan, but gives no outline of proposed terms, although the State Department now says it will have the formula ready when Congress meets, but until it is submitted and a study made of it, it is unfair to expect any member of Congress to commit himself. The Administration asserts that Europe is in need of American help, but neither endorses nor refutes the claims for aid set forth by European leaders.

With respect to this whole matter, the nation has not had competent leadership. There has been an appeal to the humanitarian instincts of the people, and the point has been made that the Marshall Plan will serve to block further inroads by communism in the nations of Western Europe. But that does not mean that Congress should step up and sign a blank check.

Before the American taxpayers see their money tossed to the winds, they want to know who is to get how much and what it is to be used for.

Rep. Beall, after citing the fact that the United States exports in connection with shipments of food and other help to Europe are closely tied in with our own price structure, reiterates his belief that it is most important that this country should proceed slowly and cautiously. He will find much support for his stand.

Hitler Dead, Again

Hitler has died again. The somewhat gory details of his passing have been supplied by Arthur Axmann, former leader of the Nazi youth movement and an intimate of the fuhrer. His story follows the pattern of those formerly told, but with considerable more plausibility. Axmann was a member of the small party, including Hitler, which had taken refuge in an air raid bunker in Berlin.

Russian armies were marching on the city, but Hitler had hoped two loyal battalions would be able to keep a way open for his escape. When told that Goering and Himmler had deserted him, and fearful of a fate similar to that which befell Mussolini, he told the others he would commit suicide, together with Eva Braun, and ordered their bodies burned.

Axmann said the fuhrer walked the floor all night, and as morning came fired a bullet into his mouth. Eva had taken poison. The pair was found in an inner room, Hitler sitting upright, Eva's head on his shoulder.

The bodies were carried outside, saturated with gasoline and burned. The remains were dumped in a shell hole and covered with dirt. This may explain why they were not found, giving birth to many rumors they had escaped in some mysterious manner.

So Hitler is dead, again. None could have passed more inconspicuously.

Preparedness

So doctors must create "a nationwide emergency plan" to care for casualties if atomic warfare strikes the United States! That is the recommendation of Dr. Edward L. Bortz, president of the American Medical Association.

The very words have a lurid sound, but Dr. Bortz occupies a responsible position in an organization not given to hysterical statements, and the grounds for his suggestion are obvious to all.

In the current world situation, the danger must be risked that preparation for the worst may create in us, against our will, a perilous attitude tending toward acceptance of war.

The medical annexes of the nation's preparedness plan should be drawn up as soon as possible. A mass of pertinent data is available from experience during the two wars. It is horrible to think that such planning is necessary, but it is doubly horrible to realize that the facts make it so.

FOOTBALL, A HE-MAN GAME

FOOTBALL is one of America's grand old sports and each week during the autumn months it attracts millions of spectators. But when two teams meet, it is well named—a battle. The boys are having fun but the game is strenuous and calls for strength and skill. It is obvious that such vigorous exertion offers many opportunities for casualties. They are probably not as serious as those resulting from boxing but a larger variety is possible. Practically all the players survive and are rarely left with residual defects. But when an injury occurs, the disability may prevent further participation and interfere with other student activities.

This is often a great blow to the spectators especially when a star is involved. But the student seldom thinks of the feelings of the player who, like a war hero, is soon forgotten. Therein lies the thanks for "dying for dear old . . ."—something each boy must think of who looks upon the game as more than a sport and body builder.

Fewer accidents arise if the player is alert, well trained, and remembers how to guard himself when tackling or blocking. In addition, he must wear the proper gear and be in good physical condition. But most of these precautions are of no avail when fatigue sets in. The tired lad gets bounced about and, before long, a misadventure will cause him to be carried away on a stretcher.

McPhee compiled statistics at Princeton for the years 1933 to 1942. He found that each contestant had a 70 per cent chance of being hurt at some time in the scrimmage. Moreover, the average period of incapacity was 5.2 days. When these figures are interpreted we can see that a certain number of mishaps are slight; others more serious. Thirty per cent were severe and demanded considerable time for repair. This was not good for Princeton as one-half the victims were key men. Each squad can expect to lose one per cent of its members yearly because of damage to head or knee. One in 25 was unable to perform during the entire season.

The football season lasts from eight to 10 weeks. Some schools have spring training; others play post-season games. As a rule, there are between 50 and 70 days on which catastrophes can take place and over half occur during the two or three weeks of practice. It is little wonder that the coaches feel relieved when the athletes are ready to meet their opponents.

Bruises and sprains are encountered most frequently. Healing is generally rapid unless complicated by hemorrhages or calcium deposits. Other afflictions include torn muscles, fractures, dislocations, and brain concussion. Lacerations and injuries to the teeth and nose are fairly common. Nevertheless, football will continue to be popular and many colleges are making a concentrated effort to minimize its hazards. Apparently the dangers are decreasing since athletic directors and coaches have determined the causes. In addition, better equipment is available to safeguard the participants as well as make them more comfortable.

HOW MUCH?
M. K. writes: How can a person know just when he has eaten enough food at any meal?

REPLY
Some never know when to stop. The obese must leave the table before they are satisfied if they ever expect to reduce. Counting the calories often helps. The individual who is of normal weight has followed instinctively the laws of supply and demand.

NOT AT ALL
T. M. writes: Is sleeping on the left side of the heart?

REPLY
It will not harm the organ in any way. This fairly tale probably originated from the observation that some individuals with heart trouble find more comfort in sleeping on the right side.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

I know inflation when I see it, but this is ridiculous. I just read that cocoa has gone up 900 percent. I did get suspicious when I saw a guy pay $200 for a bar of chocolate yesterday — of course, it had almonds.

Last night I passed the bank and Atwater Kent was putting his bonbons in escrow.

One guy I know is really rich. He hasn't a thing to do all day but sit there in his pool, splashing around in his chocolate pudding. I guess that's why they won't be rolling the traditional, chocolate-covered Easter eggs on the White House lawn. They'll get something cheap—like diamonds.

And the candy counters in the movies have stopped serving chocolate bars. They couldn't afford to arm the users.

But this chocolate price rise is only an indication. All candies will probably start to go up. Soon, when somebody mentions a sensational licorice stick, he won't be talking about a clarinet.

And I can see two women at a dance when one admires the other's necklace and says: "My dear, where did you get those dazzling jelly beans?"

I think the price is going up on peppermint sticks too. Last night I saw two shiftless characters sawing down a barbed pole.

It might not be a bad idea to put all your money in chocolate, but here's one difficulty. Come summer and all your assets will be liquid.

Restricted Nazi Files Contain Important War Information; Royall Wants To Release Papers To Public; How Nazis Planned To Exterminate Jews

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—One of the most important treasures of war information in existence are the Nazi files seized by the U. S. Army after it entered Germany. The Nazis were methodical keepers of records, and almost everything they did, ranging from conferences with Hitler to actions by deputy fuhrers, was faithfully recorded and filed away.

In the opinion of Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall, these papers, which throw significant light on the war, should be made available to the American people. American soldiers gave their blood to capture them, and Royall has tried to persuade the State Department to open the files to the public.

However, Wall Street banker Bob Lovett, Acting Secretary of State, feels otherwise. And following his usual hush-hush policy, these revealing papers have been kept secret.

This column, however, has been able to obtain one sensational Nazi document giving the minutes of the meeting at which Hitler's advisers plotted the master-plan for the extermination of European Jews. The meeting was held on Jan. 20, 1942. And while history has now shown what happened since, the public does not know the names of the men who planned this mass extermination and the detailed way in which they worked it out.

Furthermore, despite the long-drawn-out war crimes trials at Nuremberg, these men have not yet been indicted.

Minutes of this Berlin conference record in cold type the plan to put Jews in work camps and literally mark them to death, or as the Nazi record puts it "fall out through natural diminution."

"The remnant that finally is able to survive all this," states the conference memo, "must be given treatment accordingly," since they might become "the germ cell of a new Jewish movement, should they be allowed to go free."

Pertinent parts of the minutes of this conference to decide the fate of European Jewry follow:

Nazi Machinery For End Of Jews

The Comedians That Time Forgot

When Abbott and Costello, that pair of uninhibited comedians, moved from N.B.C. to A.B.C., they announced with what may have been a little artistic satisfaction or, on the other hand, may have been just sour grapes that they would be permitted considerably more freedom on the new network.

Frankly, I'm not sure this is a good thing. Liberty, in the case of Abbott and Costello, degenerates into sheer abandon. In fact, if Patrick Henry had ever heard Abbott and Costello on the radio, I think he wouldn't have made that remark or at least he would have phrased it a little differently.

Anyway, if Abbott and Costello were suffering from any restraints over at N.B.C., they weren't apparent to the naked ear. Whether on N.B.C. or A.B.C., they still assault a microphone with their weird enthusiasm and ear-splitting yells. Sometimes I wonder whether any one has ever fully explained the function of a transmitter to Abbott and Costello; they appear to be trying to reach Nebraska by sheer lung power.

There isn't a great deal of difference between their new and their old shows; they have even brought along from their former network some jokes about N.B.C. vice-presidents, a bit of sentimentality roughly equivalent to the old New England custom of moving the ashes from the old hearth to the new.

At their best, Abbott and Costello have some wonderfully dizzy comedy routines in which an innocent remark by Abbott is pounded into pure nonsense by Costello, the little round member of the team. Probably the best one is their baseball routine "Who's on first?" "Stay out of the infield." "They didn't reach anywhere near that height on their opening performance."

"Where is our engineer?" inquired Costello.

"No, Ware is our producer," said Abbott. "Watt is an engineer."

"You don't know what an engineer is?"

"I'm taking shots."

As you readily see, Abbott and Costello have no particular qualms about resuscitating some of the oldest routines in the business under the questionable theory that what was good enough for grandfathers is good enough for you and me. They are extremely conservative fellows, Abbott and Costello. There is a story that they won't use a joke unless it has first been tried by some other comedian and the results have been fully recorded and documented. It's very nice of them really. They don't want to try their medicine out on the public until it has been fully tested.

Gruppenfuhrer Hofmann, Race and Settlement Main Office.

"If, at the beginning of the meeting the Chief of the Security Police and the SD, SS-Obergruppenfuhrer Heydrich, reported his appointment by the Reichsmarschall to serve as Commissioner for the preparation of the final solution of the European Jewish problem, and he pointed out then that the officials had been invited to this conference in order to clear up the fundamental problems. The Reichsmarschall's request to have a draft submitted to him on the organizational, physical and material requirements with respect to the final solution of the European Jewish problem necessitated this previous general consultation by all the central offices directly concerned, in order that there should be coordination in the policy."

"The primary responsibility for the administrative handling of the final solution of the Jewish problem will rest centrally with the Reichsfuhrer-SS and the Chief of the German Police (Chief of the Security Police and the SD)—regardless of geographic boundaries."

"The Chief of the Security Police and the SD thereafter gave a brief review of the little conducted up to now against these enemies. The most important phases are:

"A/ Forcing the Jews out of the various phases of the community life of the German people."

"B/ Forcing the Jews out of the Lebensraum of the German people."

"Final Solution" Of Jews

"Meanwhile, in view of the dangers of an emigration during the war and in view of the possibilities in the East, the Reichsfuhrer-SS and the Chief of the German Police had forbidden the emigrating of the Jews."

"III. The emigration program has now been replaced by the evacuation of the Jews to the East as a further solution possibility, in accordance with previous authorization by the Fuhrer."

"These actions are of course to be regarded only as a temporary substitute; nonetheless here already the practical experience has been acquired which in view of the coming final solution of the Jewish problem is of great importance."

"In the course of this final solution of the European Jewish problem approximately eleven million Jews are involved. They are distributed among the individual countries as follows: (then follows a list of all European countries and their Jewish population, even including England, Ireland, Switzerland and Scandinavian countries not occupied by Hitler. The fact that these countries, together with Russia were included in Nazi calculations, would indicate that Hitler planned to take all the countries of Europe and exterminate all Jews. At the time of this conference, Jan. 20, 1942, Pearl Harbor had just crippled the American fleet, the Japs were rushing toward India and

"In conclusion the various kinds of solutions were discussed, and here both Gauleiter Dr. Meyer and also State Secretary Dr. Buehler advocated that certain preparatory tasks in the course of the final solution be performed immediately in the territories concerned; in this, however, the disturbing effect of the population must be avoided."

"With the request of the Chief of the Security Police and the SD to those participating in the conference to afford him their support in the carrying out of the tasks in connection with the solution, the conference was concluded."

Sidelights on celebrities:—

A Polish officer, writing in "Revue Generale Belge," throws an interesting light on Jacob (Yasha) Dugashvili, Stalin's oldest son. The officer saw much of Yasha during their 14 months together as prisoners of the Germans at Camp Brandenburg.

Yasha was captured, along with remnants of his motorized unit, during the battle for Vitebsk early in 1942. The man, then about 30, was ragged and half-starved. The Germans announced that they had him, but no food, clothing or medical supplies ever were sent to him. He was saved from starvation within the camp by other prisoners.

Extremely diffident

He was extremely diffident at first, but eventually thawed out and became friends with the Polish officer. The officer introduced him once as "Capt. Stalin," and Yasha immediately corrected him.

"My name is Dugashvili," he said. "Stalin is the name of my father, and does not belong to me."

Yasha admitted later that he and his father seldom saw each other. As a son of Stalin's first wife, he learned to resent the succeeding two.

As a young man he was heard pointing out what he believed to be flaws in the Soviet system, and was arrested by the OGPU and charged with "plotting against the person of Stalin." He was released and apparently exiled from Moscow.

Yasha never joined in quiet talk concerning the hopes of escape. "Who would I go to," he asked. "In the Russian Army an officer is not supposed to surrender. I could have fought to the end."

Yasha's admiration for the Red Army remained enormous at Brandenburg, the officer writes. He mechanically sounded many Russian catch-phrases, including some which were surprising at that stage of the war.

He told the officer that the British would "fight to the last Frenchman, Pole and Canadian;" that Poland would become a Soviet puppet and that Russia must conquer the west because it was "rotten" and must be saved.

Yasha was removed suddenly one day, and the next day the Germans claimed unearthing 10,000 Poles slain at Katyn by the Russians. The prisoners were told that Poles in the camp might have killed Yasha for revenge, if he had not been moved before the story broke.

Yasha was liberated by the GIs in the Munich area at the end of the war and returned to the anonymity of his earlier life—or worse.

Mr. Luckman's Eggs

SO I take a look at the record and it would seem that the eggless Thursday and poultry-less Thursday are just thrown in for nothing. This country is astonishingly full of eggs, and poultry and there is no shortage and not eating eggs will add nothing to the food we wish to send the Europeans. However, by not distilling liquor and not brewing beer, the quantity of mash available for feed is reduced.

Therefore, the poultry will have to be fed grain, which will reduce the quantity of grain available for export to Europe. Also, if fewer chickens and turkeys are killed, more of them will be around to eat the grain. Perhaps Mr. Luckman can explain all that. So far, his silence has indicated that he knows more about Rinsio White than about the egg.

And how about cake? On a Thursday I go into a restaurant and I hear a child ask for a sliced egg sandwich. No, go! It is Thursday. The child eats a tomato and bacon sandwich. But they sell her eggless layer cake. They are eggs in that cake or is the yellow in the dough flat wall paint? Also, I note a rice pudding on the menu, not the old-fashioned "Poor Man's rice pudding," but the stiff kind taken out of the pot with a scoop like ice cream. And so help me it has yellow in it. Is the yellow not an egg yolk work added to the spaghetti and chicken livers. Whence came those chicken livers on Thursday? Oh! Luckman, Oh! Luckman, did they not tell you at the Kansas City Junior College and the University of Illinois that the liver of a chicken should come out of a chicken's liver on Thursday?

So one asks. What is this campaign all about?

Suppose we look at these figures: Farm prices on September 15 reached an all-time high, 167 per cent over the 1935-39 average. When taken to the commodities farmers have to buy, farm prices almost doubled the increase in prices for goods farmers bought. The farmer received for the first eight months of 1947, $17,400,000,000, or 21 per cent above the same period last year. I do not begrudge the

Why, otherwise, would anyone have a meatless, poultryless, eggless day when there is an excess of meat, poultry and eggs in this country? Why would Luckman's dramatization be invoked to reduce the price of meat and fowl when the world is crying for more fat?

Answer that one, Charlie!

Families Providing For The Future Lessen "Bust" Danger

By ROGER W. BABSON

EUREKA, Kansas, Oct. 19.—To those who are troubled about the financial outlook, I want to say that only as more families adopt careful Estate Planning will our nation reduce its "boom and busts." In other words, for every additional family providing for the future, the "booms" will be less dangerous; and the "depressions" will be less severe. I feel very certain about this.

We give too much time to business and too little to our children. Busy executives give the most time to thinking of the future which it to be a very essential part to his later-life development. Also think of the farmer or businessman who has been pouring all his profits back into the farm or business. He sells out and finds himself with a grand bank balance, but no income until he puts his money to work. He has to sit down and do some very serious thinking. His entire future depends on it.

Then there is the widow with responsibilities left on her shoulders. Busy executives give the most time to thinking of the future which it to be a very essential part to his later-life development. PITCHING HORSESHOES

by Billy Rose

One evening a couple of months back, my aunt Frieda telephoned me. "Your Uncle Charlie is busy with business to-night," she said. "Maybe you'd like to come and eat his portion sauerbraten so it shouldn't go to waste."

A fast minute later, I was in a cab headed for the East Side and the best sauerbraten in the world. "Don't worry about the lights," I told the driver. "Matter of life or death."

As I got to the tenement in which Charlie and Frieda have lived for years, my nose began doing nips-ups. The whole house smelled like a ketchup factory.

"What's cooking?" I asked a kid who was sitting on the stoop.

"Tomatoes," said the youngster. "On every floor, tomatoes."

As I climbed the three flights to Charlie's flat, the odors of roasted, boiled, fried and fricasseed tomatoes filled the halls. Aunt Frieda was waiting for me on the landing.

"You have to come in through the kitchen," she said. "The parlor is full."

"Full of what?" I asked.

"Tomatoes," said my aunt. "I peeked into the parlor. It was chock-a-block with crates and baskets of tomatoes. 'Where's Uncle Charlie?' I asked.

"In the penitentiary," grinned Frieda.

"Begin at the beginning," I said. "The tenement smells like an anti-pasto plant. The parlor is full of tomatoes. Uncle Charlie is in the house, too. What happened?"

"What happened?" chuckled my aunt. "Could only happen to your Uncle Charlie. Last Saturday we are going on the bus to catch some fresh air on my cousin Irving's farm."

"You mean the cousin who has a truck farm in New Jersey?"

"The identical," said Frieda. "For eight years, Irving is making a A-number-one living raising vegetables. In twenty minutes, your genius uncle figures out how for eight years what Irving has been doing is wrong. A regular Louie Burbank. He starts with telling him how he should make rain with dry ice, and finishes with an invention to make green tomatoes get ripe right away. I tried to warn Irving that your uncle is a genius—genius spelled backwards, jekass—but Charlie is getting Irving excited with big words from Popular Mechanics.

"Next day Irving is picking off the green tomatoes, like your uncle tells him, and putting them in the cellar. Charlie is going away to New York and coming back with sun lamps which he is borrowing from our boy Melvin, the druggist-doctor."

"Did the ultra-violet rays ripen the tomatoes?" I asked.

"Red like borsch they got," said Frieda.

my aunt Frieda. "I am picking one up and sampling same. Not only is it ripe—it is also fried. When Cousin Irving sees he is owning two acres of tomatoes, he is calling a lawyer, who is a relation on his opinion Charlie must buy the crop on account there are no wholesale customers for fried tomatoes. Irving and the lawyer is making the price seventy-five dollars and, besides, your uncle must get a truck and move out the fried vegetables.

"Next day while I am visiting with Mrs. Mendel, your uncle behind my back is plotting high the parlor with the tomatoes."

"Where did Charlie get the seventy-five?"

Aunt Frieda sighed. "Who has seventy-five dollars? A bank. So your uncle goes to a bank. When they ask what security he has got, he tells them two acres tomatoes.

"In couple days, the tomatoes is making itself known in the house, and the tenants is forming themselves a committee to complain to the landlord your uncle is cooking glue in the flat. Charlie is postponing the complaint by giving each tenant a crate fried tomatoes complimentary. Soon every restaurant for blocks is featuring on the menu Tomato Surprise.

"This morning, is coming an inspector from the Board Health. He says kiddies up to Eight Street is breaking out with red spots. While Charlie is having a glass tea with the Board Health, is coming a man from the bank with a policeman. The man says someone is snitching to the bank your uncle put up fried collateral. And for this, Charlie is now in the Seventh Precinct penitentiary."

"Let's go down to the station-house and bail the old boy out," I said.

"Let him sit there a little," said my aunt. "How about a plate sauerbraten?"

"Sauerbraten with potato pancakes?" I asked hopefully.

"No," smiled Frieda. "With tomato sauce."

Sad But True—You Can't Run Lives Of Other People

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Sad as it may be, sometimes it is rarely possible to take over the direction of another person's life, when it seems heading in the wrong direction, and set it straight again. That is, of course, unless the other person asks for this kind of assistance. If any such request is forthcoming, there is no use whatever in anyone trying to push another aside from the helm of his own ship and take over the steering job himself. About all that ever happens in a case of this sort is that the boat capsizes and spills everybody into a lot of trouble.

I am thinking, at the moment, of a married woman in her twenties who writes me about her worry over a sister who is five years younger than herself.

This 21-year-old sister is apparently going through a phase when she gets more of a thrill from associating with the wrong kind of older men than with the right kind of boys her own age. She and a girl friend have allowed themselves to be picked up by a group of these men and would rather spend evenings—and far into the night—in their company than to go out with their contemporaries.

"My sister has gone out with these men," she writes, "when they were drunk, and when they come home about two or three o'clock in the morning and she brings them in and they sit in the living room until all hours. . . . Why won't she go out with boys that the family know well and who come to her house and ask her for a date? They are very nice to her and she went to school with them. I know she likes them, for she is nice to them. But she won't go out with them. . . . Can't you make her see how wrong she is, or am I wrong?"

Of course this sister isn't wrong and undoubtedly the younger girl knows it very well but defiantly refuses to be told what to do. No amount of scolding or arguing or pleading is going to have any effect upon her in her present mood, so the sister might as well save her breath.

The sister has her own home next door to her mother's with whom this 21-year-old and a brother live, and she says neither the mother nor the brother has any more influence with the girl than she has.

If the brother is older than this girl, it is possible that he may yet be the one to make her stop and think, if anyone can. That is, if he cares to make the effort. But it would be just as useless for him to try to do it by scolding as it has been for the older sister. There is apt to be a great deal of hero-worship in the feeling that a girl has for an older brother, and, if he is smart, he can make this feeling pay good dividends.

My suggestion would be that the older sister talk to the brother and suggest a change of attitude all around toward the younger sister. Instead of accusing and blaming her, let them try to think up good times that they can help plan for her right at home. For example, the brother might start things off by inviting some of his friends to the home for an evening party, and, in this way, get the sister acquainted with men whom he is sure it is all right for her to know.

Such a plan may not work, but it is certainly worth trying and is more likely to bring good results than continued scolding.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

by Billy Rose

One evening a couple of months back, my aunt Frieda telephoned me. "Your Uncle Charlie is busy with business to-night," she said. "Maybe you'd like to come and eat his portion sauerbraten so it shouldn't go to waste."

A fast minute later, I was in a cab headed for the East Side and the best sauerbraten in the world. "Don't worry about the lights," I told the driver. "Matter of life or death."

As I got to the tenement in which Charlie and Frieda have lived for years, my nose began doing nips-ups. The whole house smelled like a ketchup factory.

"What's cooking?" I asked a kid who was sitting on the stoop.

"Tomatoes," said the youngster. "On every floor, tomatoes."

As I climbed the three flights to Charlie's flat, the odors of roasted, boiled, fried and fricasseed tomatoes filled the halls. Aunt Frieda was waiting for me on the landing. "You have to come in through the kitchen," she said. "The parlor is full."

"Full of what?" I asked.

"Tomatoes," said my aunt. I peeked into the parlor. It was chock-a-block with crates and baskets of tomatoes. "Where's Uncle Charlie?" I asked.

"In the penitentiary," grinned Frieda.

"Begin at the beginning," I said. "The tenement smells like an anti-pasto plant. The parlor is full of tomatoes. Uncle Charlie is in the house. What happened?"

"What happened," chuckled my aunt, "could only happen to your Uncle Charlie. Last Saturday we are going on the bus to catch some fresh air on my cousin Irving's farm."

"You mean the cousin who has a truck farm in New Jersey?"

"The identical," said Frieda. "For eight years, Irving is making a A-number-one living raising vegetables. In twenty minutes, your genius uncle figures out how for eight years what Irving has been doing is wrong. A regular Louie Burbank. He starts with telling him how he should make rain with dry ice, and finishes with an invention to make green tomatoes get ripe right away. I tried to warn Irving that your uncle is a genius-genius spelled backwards, jackass—but Charlie is getting Irving excited with big words from Popular Mechanics."

"Next day Irving is picking off the green tomatoes, like your uncle tells him, and putting them in the cellar. Charlie is going away to New York and coming back with sun lamps which he is borrowing from our boy Melvin, the druggist-doctor."

"Did the ultra-violet rays ripen the tomatoes?" I asked.

"Red like borsch they got," said Frieda.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Sad But True—You Can't Run Lives Of Other People

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Sad as it may be, sometimes it is rarely possible to take over the direction of another person's life. When it seems heading in the wrong direction, and set it straight again. That is, of course, unless the other person asks for this kind of assistance. If any such request is forthcoming, there is no use whatever in anyone trying to push another aside from the helm of his own ship and take over the steering job himself. About all that ever happens in a case of this sort is that the boat capsizes and spills everybody into a lot of trouble.

I am thinking, at the moment, of a married woman in her twenties who writes me about her worry over a sister who is five years younger than herself.

This 21-year-old sister is apparently going through a phase when she gets more of a thrill from associating with the wrong kind of older men than with the right kind of boys her own age. She and a girl friend have allowed themselves to be picked up by a group of these men and would rather spend evenings—and far into the night—in their company than to go out with their contemporaries.

"My sister has gone out with these men," she writes, "when they were drunk, and when they come home about two or three o'clock in the morning and she brings them in and they sit in the living room until all hours. . . . The sister has her own home next door to her mother's with whom this 21-year-old and a brother live, and she says neither the mother nor the brother has any more influence with the girl than she has.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD
By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 19—(INS)—Here is the first definite word on Garbo's motion picture plans, and extremely interesting. She has agreed to sign a contract with three countries to star in "Madame George Sand," written by Salka Viertel. In England either Laurence Olivier or Alexander Korda, or both will share the profits. In the United States, Peter Cusick, with a 20th Century-Fox release.

George Cukor will direct her, and exteriors will be made in France and interiors in England in May. All three nations will participate equally in the profits. It is the first time, so far as I know, that a three-nation deal has ever been made for any star or picture.

Garbo is now in New York conferring with Cusick, who is with the State Department, and is just back from abroad where he made all the plans. The story of Sand, a French aristocrat, will have the beautiful music of the composers of her day. Johnny Hyde of the William Morris agency is credited with putting the deal over with Garbo.

Not bad for Sy Bartlett, who is right on the 20th Century-Fox lot, to receive $200,000 for "Twelve O'Clock High," his new novel. He and collaborator Beirne Leigh had offers from practically every other studio for this book, which is actually the life of General Frank Armstrong, but when Darryl Zanuck read it, he wanted it, so naturally Sy was delighted to sell it to his home studio.

There is only a background of war and it is a little like "Command Decision," which stars Paul Kelly on Broadway, and which has been called the "Journey's End" of this war.

Joan Crawford has her eye on the Jeanne Eagels' biography and would like to do it, provided Warner can buy it. So far, Casey Robinson hasn't been interested in it.

Dukes Arrange 41 Games, Open Nov. 16

Diehl And Broadwater Hounds Win In Field Trial

Five Exhibition Contests Booked By Local Cagers

Play 17 Sundays Here; Duquesne Initial Foe

47 Dogs Entered In Two-Day Meet Of Beagle Club

Grantsville, Mather Men Own AKC Victors

Hounds owned by F. C. Diehl of Grantsville, Md., and C. W. Broadwater of Mather, Pa., were returned to the winners in the Allegheny Beagle Club's second annual Plan "A" AKC sanctioned field trial held on the club grounds, McMullen Highway, Saturday and Sunday.

On Saturday, a 13 inch all age combined class of 24 hounds were entered while Sunday's running brought out an all age combined class of 23 fifteen inch beagles.

In spite of very poor running conditions on Saturday, due to the prolonged dry weather, several fine runs were furnished by each class with Lucust Lane Sally, owned by F. C. Diehl finishing on top in Saturday's 13 inch class and Rocky Red Checker, owned by C. W. Broadwater, being judged the winner in the 15 inch division.

The judging was very capably handled by Lew Madden and Bill Toothman, both of Morgantown, W. Va. Madden being engaged after "Ike" Brown notified the club officials that he would be unable to fulfill his engagement. Madden and Toothman are both well known judges and breeders of field trial beagles.

Dean Broadwater of Grantsville served as field marshal and did an excellent job of keeping the large gallery following the hounds in line while tallying the bunnies.

In addition to cash prizes and ribbons awarded by the club, the first, second and third place hounds in each class were given prizes of a sack of dog feed donated by the Farmers Feed and Supply Company of Cumberland.

Redskins Lose, Lookabaugh Gets Lone Touchdown

Snares Baugh's Pass; Green Bay Wins 27-10

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 19.—(P)—Scoring early and late, the Green Bay Packers improved their hold on second place in the National Football League's western division with a 27-10 victory over Washington today before 25,572 fans at State Fair Park.

Indian Jack Jacobs and Sammy Baugh battled about evenly in their passing duel, the veteran Redskins quarterback completing 19 of 39 attempts, with two interceptions, and Jacobs hitting on 12 of 23 with none intercepted. Baugh pitched for a scoreless tie in a game played in the mud during a driving rain.

Whitewashed Four Times
In the three previous games Hill-topper eleven amassed a total of 128 points in scoring three shut-out triumphs. In 1942 it was 47-0, in 1943 the count was 36-0 and in 1944 the final score was 45-0. Art Scall objected to Ridgeley playing Fort Hill in the opener in 1945 so there was no game between the schools that season.

Friday night Coach Jesse Ridgeley's undefeated Blackhawk (they've won four and lost none) will try again to upset the mighty Redskins who have rolled over their last five opponents after dropping the lid-lifter to a Virginia team and have racked up 215 points against 61, an average of 36 to 10, in games played to date.

It's the big battle of the week between two of the top teams in the district and should attract one of the largest crowds of the season to the stadium.

Keyser Invades Keyser
Dick McKey's Romney Pioneers, who are in the thick of the fight for the P. V. C. title, will invade Keyser Friday afternoon to do battle with "Tack" Clark's Keyser High Golden Trojans.

In another P. V. C. test, Moorehead, smarting from defeat at the hands of Ridgeley, will play host to the Franklin Panthers who have played tie games in their last two starts.

Bruce Fisher's Bedford Bisons will entertain Fernalde High's Yellow Jackets at Bedford Friday night while in other Friday afternoon games in nearby West Virginia Parsons will play the Vikings at Parsons and Thomas will play Terra Alta High at the latter place.

Locals Play On Saturday
Two Cumberland eleven's are scheduled to play Saturday night games. Lodi will play host to Moorehead, smarting from defeat at the hands of Ridgeley, will play host to the Franklin Panthers who have played tie games in their last two starts.

Allegany High will play Roosevelt-Wilson High School at Clarksburg, W. Va. The Presidents took the measure of A. H. S. here last season, 14-7, and the West Virginians will reign as favorites in this week's battle.

Potomac State's unbeaten Catamounts will battle the Salem College Tigers in Keyser on Saturday afternoon.

REV. BROTHER GILBERT, DISCOVERER OF BABE RUTH, DIES SUDDENLY
LOWELL, Mass., Oct. 19.—(P)—The Rev. Brother Gilbert, C. F. X., discoverer of Babe Ruth, suffered a heart attack and died today during afternoon retreat services at St. Mary's Industrial School in Lowell.

Brother Gilbert first recognized Babe Ruth's baseball ability while serving at St. Mary's Industrial School in Baltimore. In 1914, he brought Ruth, then a gangling youngster, to Manager Jack Dunn of the Baltimore Orioles of the International League, who developed Ruth as a pitcher.

Ruth, who later became baseball's greatest home run hitter, was sold in that same year to Harry Frazee's Boston Red Sox, where he developed into one of the game's greatest all-time stars.

Fort Hill's Goal Uncrossed In Four Games With Ridgeley

Leading Teams Meet Here Friday Night

Believe it, or not, but the records show that Ridgeley High School has failed to score a single point against Fort Hill teams since the schools first met on the gridiron in 1942.

Four times in the past five years the Blackhawk and the Sentinels have clashed and the best the West Virginians could do was to hold Bill Hahn's 1946 eleven to a scoreless tie in a game played in the mud during a driving rain.

Whitewashed Four Times
In the three previous games Hill-topper eleven amassed a total of 128 points in scoring three shut-out triumphs. In 1942 it was 47-0, in 1943 the count was 36-0 and in 1944 the final score was 45-0. Baltimore Colts Drop 38-10 Game To Coast Eleven

36,852 Fans See Dons Score At Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 19.—(P)—Coming from behind a 0-10 deficit, the Los Angeles Dons romped to an easy 38-10 victory over the Baltimore Colts today in an All-America Football Conference game played before 36,852 customers.

Off to a fast start in the first period when Wilson (Red) Schwenk passed 24 yards to Billy Hillenbrand, who took the ball on the Dons' 35 and galloped to a touchdown, Baltimore never had a look in during the final three quarters.

After Augie Lio booted a field goal from the Los Angeles 24 yard line a few minutes after the touchdown, Baltimore was through scoring for the remainder for the Dons went to work.

Line Wears Down Colts
Their line, heaviest in the conference with a 235-average, gradually wore down the Colts, and Dons reserves finished the game.

John Kimbrough, with two touchdowns, and Chuck Penenbock, Bob Reinhard, and Walter Heap with one apiece, accounted for the Dons' six-pointers, but probably the most sensational tally was Ben Agajanian's field goal which traveled 53 yards in the fourth period for a new conference record.

Agajanian, who hasn't missed a point after touchdown in four years and lost the toes of his right foot in a college accident, sailed the ball straight to the uprights, and it struck the cross bar and bounced over for three points. The Cleveland Browns' Lou Groza held the former record of 51 yards set a year ago, while the National League mark of 54 yards is credited to Bob Prasnell of the Detroit Lions, in 1934.

Dons Go To Work
After being 10 points down, Los Angeles really went to work in the second period with two touchdowns. Charlie O'Rourke passed 22 yards to Kimbrough for one, and Penenbock circled end 13 yards for another.

The Dons marched 59 yards in 13 plays in the third period for another score, Kimbrough slicing off from the two yard line. Reinhard grabbed a seven yard O'Rourke touchdown while the National League mark of 54 yards is credited to Bob Prasnell of the Detroit Lions, in 1934.

Jamaica Resumes Race Meet Today

Grooms, Exercise Boys End Four-Day Strike

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(P)—Horse racing will return to the Jamaica track tomorrow, it was announced officially tonight following the end of a four-day strike of grooms and exercise riders which forced the cancellation of yesterday's program.

Robert Kelley, spokesman for the five New York racing associations, announced the "definite" resumption of the Jamaica meeting at the end of a lengthy session in which additional owners and trainers signed the "code of honor" which brought an end to the strike last night.

Approximately 200 owners and trainers met for three hours today with the Rev. William J. Kelley, chairman of the State Labor Relations Board, who outlined the code agreement drafted earlier in the week by a committee appointed by Mayor William O'Dwyer.

NEVADA'S WOLFPACK TROUNCES ST. MARY'S
SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 19 (INS)—Coach Joe Sheets' Nevada Wolfpack outsmarted, outplayed and outpassed the Galloping Gaels of St. Mary's to take a decisive 39 to 14 win in Kezar Stadium in San Francisco today before 35,000 fans.

It was the third straight loss for the Gaels and the third straight win for Nevada. For the first time in many years Nevada really played "big league" football and pleased the crowd, with brilliant tackling, rushing and passing.

Nevada scored in every period of the game and never was in any trouble. They took an early lead to hold a 19 to 0 halftime margin and then added 20 more points in the second half.

Reports to the effect that reserved seats are being sold for the Port Hills-Ridgeley game here Friday night are incorrect, it was announced last night by John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh.

Seats are unreserved and will go on sale at the various agencies about Wednesday.

Los Angeles Rams Defeat Cardinals
LOS ANGELES, Oct. 19.—(INS)—The Los Angeles Rams scored a 27 to 7 win over the Chicago Cardinals today and with the victory gained a top chance at the National Pro Football League pennant.

The balance of the tie favors the Rams, although the loop is in a three-way tie—the Rams, the Cardinals and the Green Bay Packers.

This edge in favor of the Rams is because they play most of their remaining games at home.

Today the Rams, slight underdogs at the start of the game, were pepped up, while the Cards' vaunted million-dollar backfield looked like 30 cents on the dollar.

Except for two sustained drives by the Cards, Los Angeles dominated the game all the way, sparked by Quarterback Bob Waterfield, who is well on his way toward his second most valuable player award.

A National League record crowd of 69,531 saw the game in Memorial Coliseum.

Kenny Washington twisted and dodged through a 31-yard run for the Rams and the game's first score early in the second quarter.

Late in the same period the Rams in ten plays of running and passing drove to their second touchdown, with Jack Banta carrying it over.

In the third period they drove 93 yards to another touchdown by Banta. Gil Bouley recovered a fumble and ran 35 yards to pay dirt for the final Ram score.

The Cards' only touchdown was in the middle of the third period when they went 79 yards on ten plays, with Boris Dimanchuff making the score.

WESTVACO IS VICTOR OVER HYNDMAN, 7-4
Westvaco defeated the Hyndman (Pa.) Firemen in the final game of the baseball season yesterday at Parsons by the score of 7 to 4. The victory gave Westvaco a clean sweep of the series, having won the first game last week by the score of 8-3.

Ryan, Ross and Inskip shared the pitching burden for Westvaco while Johnny Waldman and Mel Ne worked on the firing line for the Firemen.

FEDERAL HATCHERY SENDS 3,700 FISH FOR LOCAL STREAMS
The Battle Mison Fishing Hole in the Cheapeake and Ohio Canal and Town Creek have been stocked with 3,500 blue gill or sun fish and 200 bass which were delivered to Oidtown last week by the federal fisheries car and transferred at that point to the state fisheries truck from the Bear Creek Hatchery.

Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden, said that the fish from the federal hatchery at Kearneysville, W. Va., were obtained through the efforts of Rep. J. Glenn Beall of Allegheny county. Application for the fish was made through Rep. Beall by Harry Vogel, of this city, former deputy game warden and sportsman.

Villanova Eleven Noses Out Detroit

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19.—(P)—Villanova College outplayed statistically, struck with two lightning-like thrusts to edge out a bruising University of Detroit football team, 14 to 12 today before 15,572 at Shibe Park.

The crowd hardly was settled in its seats when Villanova had a 7 to 0 lead. Detroit, receiving the kickoff, failed to gain and punted to Villanova. The swift Villanova back raced down the sidelines 66 yards to a touchdown.

Detroit struck back shortly after the start of the second quarter driving 56 yards for a touchdown. Harry Peterson, Coakley, Pa., quarterback, and Gene Malinowski, tossed key passes in the drive with Malinowski flipping 14 yards to John Cullen for the touchdown.

Little Len Rittoff, minus shoulder pads, came in to do his specialty—placekicking—but his attempted extra point conversion was low

Louis C. Zapf, 33 Dies Of Bullet Wound In Head

Victim Found In Garage At Home

Louis Charles Zapf, 33, son of George E. and Agnes Regina Zapf, 807 Shriver Avenue, died in Allegheny Hospital last night at 10:10 o'clock from a bullet wound in his head, which city police said was self-inflicted.

Zapf, had been despondent in recent days, members of his family stated, and over a period of time had worried about the fact that he was not taken into military service. He was a tall man, measuring six feet seven inches, and was reported to be highly sensitive about his height. At his place of employment, it was stated, he had been the target for many pranks and much teasing because of his height and had experienced some arguments and unpleasantness with his fellow workmen.

He had reported off from work at the Baltimore & Ohio Bolt and Forge shop Friday and Saturday nights and was believed to have been brooding about going back Monday.

Discovered By Father

Police said they were called to the home about 4:30 p. m. yesterday, after the youth's father discovered him lying in the garage in a pool of blood, with a .32 caliber revolver nearby. He was taken to Allegheny Hospital but failed to regain consciousness.

City Detective Edwin R. Lilla and Assistant Chief of Police B. F. Gaffney investigated, and expressed the opinion the young man shot himself. Members of the family and neighbors said they had seen Zapf about the house and yard earlier, and that he appeared all right in every way. None of the family heard the shot.

Zapf's father realizing his son had gone to the garage and had been there for a longer period than seemed necessary decided to look for him. It was then he discovered him lying on the floor unconscious.

Leo G. Zapf, his older brother, expressed the opinion that the shooting may have been accidental. He declared, "Louis had been worrying about going back to work and was sensitive about his height and the kidding of some people. But we don't think he would shoot himself."

Attended School Here

Zapf attended parochial schools here and graduated from LaSalle. He started to work at the B. & O. round house March 17, 1937 and on April 5, 1937 was transferred to the back shop, but returned to the back shop and forge shop on September 20, 1939, where he worked since as a steam fitter helper and machinist.

He was a native of Cumberland, born here June 24, 1914. He was unmarried, and with his three brothers, Leo G. Zapf, George F. Zapf, and William E. Zapf, all veterans of World War II, made his home with his parents. He also was survived by one sister, Mrs. Paul Mary Ritter, 804 Avenue.

Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner said late last night that he has not completed his investigation, but that Zapf died as the result of a bullet wound from a .32 calibre pistol. The wound was in the head, he stated, and it was indicated the bullet had entered through the victim's mouth.

Police Department Is Approved As Vet School

Ten World War II veterans can be added to the Cumberland Police Department under a GI training program it was indicated here by Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn, who states the department has been approved by the Maryland State Department of Education for such a program.

Chief Flynn explains a letter has been received authorizing the Police Department to place 10 qualified veterans on its roster as probationary-student officers. The department was surveyed and it was found that equipment and qualifications are satisfactory for conducting such a program.

The government will add $30 per month to the pay of probationary officers, now $170 per month, so each veteran in training will receive $200. Two new officers are receiving these benefits now, Flynn said.

Training will include schooling in the technique of photography, fingerprinting, routine police work, investigations and other police responsibilities.

Criminal Trials Will Open Today In Circuit Court

Murder Case Set For Tuesday Morning

Criminal trials will open in Circuit Court this week with the case of Earl Umstot set for this morning. Umstot is charged with manslaughter in connection with a highway mishap, near Moscow, several months ago.

The case of Stillman Snow Smith, about 50, indicted for murder in the fatal shooting of his 16-year-old wife, Mrs. Goldie Smith last May, near Flintstone, will be tried before a jury Tuesday. Attorneys appointed by the court to defend Smith are Estel C. Kelley and Gorman E. Reiter. Indicated last week they might ask for a change of venue, but have now stated they will plead the case here.

Trial of Mervin C. Willis, 20-year-old war veteran, who was arraigned on a murder charge Saturday and entered a plea of not guilty, is also set for this week, if the Smith case is completed. Willis was indicted in connection with the death of his 18-month-old son.

The court also arraigned James Stump, charged with larceny; Garfield Barnard, on false pretenses; and Virginia Mae Elkins, for larceny, Saturday, and each prayed a jury trial after pleading not guilty.

Edward F. Bragg, 11 Frederick Street, was placed on parole for five years after he pleaded guilty to assaulting his wife last month. Bragg was taken into custody after wounding his wife, Mrs. Myrie M. Bragg, with a revolver during an argument in their apartment.

Judge Huster commented that newspaper publicity in the Bragg case "made a mountain out of a molehill," and that this situation placed the court under criticism when leniency is shown.

"The public does not have all the background in such cases and forms its own opinion," he added. State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris said Bragg had no prior record and that with the exception of the case before the court was regarded as a good citizen. He said the prosecution was agreeable to a parole.

Bragg was ordered to refrain from intoxicants and be of good behavior. His wife was in court and told Judge Huster she "didn't want anything done to him." The couple said they had both "gotten along" before the incident and since then had been living together harmoniously.

Ralph L. Albright, this city, was paroled for three years on a charge of larceny of articles valued at $65 several months ago from a store-room on Greene Street. He told the court he has been working in a Pittsburgh steel mill and would make restitution. Edward J. Ryan represented the accused.

Fire Chief Recommends Annual Flue Check For Safety-Economy

Chimneys Should Be Checked And Cleaned

An annual inspection to make sure that all flues are in good repair and in good operating condition is worth while both from the standpoint of safety and economy. Chief Reid C. Hoenlecks, of the Cumberland Fire Department said, yesterday.

Firemen recommend that all chimneys should be checked during the summer and early fall since they know that the first real cold spell brings a deluge of fire fires. In many cases, where flues are well constructed and in good repair, little damage is done by the ordinary flue fire and firemen almost invariably report "no damage" from such blazes.

But if, as in many of the older structures, the flames escape from between the bricks and set fire to

Goethe Street Men Give Chase To Purse Thief

Police Hold Youth Captured As Suspect

It doesn't pay to do any purse snatching on a dead-end street, especially on Goethe Street, where the male residents seem to be on the alert, according to city police.

Last night at about 8 o'clock Mrs. John Sell, 104 Decatur Street, was taking a walk on Goethe Street when a young man suddenly grabbed her purse containing several hundred dollars.

Mrs. Sell screamed and several men, who live along the street, heard her and ran from their homes. They chased the youthful purse-snatcher toward the cemetery at the end of the street and finally succeeded in surrounding a man hiding in the brush.

One of the several men who circled around the hillside behind the suspect was armed with a rifle. The young man ran back toward Goethe Street, climbed across a garage roof and a porch in an effort to escape.

He was finally captured and held by the residents until police arrived in a matter of minutes after neighbors called them. A search of the area was made, and the purse was recovered near where the suspect was first found in the brush. The money and contents had not been disturbed.

At police headquarters, Assistant Chief B. F. Gaffney said the young man, a 17-year-old youth who gave his name as Harry Stewart, Jr., denied any connection with the purse snatching.

Chief Gaffney said the youth is unemployed, has been rooming on Bedford Street, and is originally from around the Flintstone area. Police said they believe the young man has been in the service, and he told them he was discharged after some trouble.

He repeatedly denied any knowledge of the purse-snatching incident but was committed to jail pending further investigation. Gaffney said the case will probably be referred to Juvenile Court.

Conlon suggests that the member of members in charge of funeral squads, platoons or parties in these organizations should be present or at least send a member of the unit.

Suicide Verdict Issued In Death Of Romney Man

Dennis I. Law Rites Are Planned Today

A funeral service will be conducted this afternoon at 3 o'clock in Romney Methodist Church for Dennis Ison Law, 50, Romney, agricultural agent for Hampshire County for the past 19 years, whose lifeless body was found Saturday afternoon hanging from the rafters of the kitchen of Hampshire Park, which he was instrumental in founding.

Mr. Law, who was active in civic, church and farm organizations of that area, will be buried in Indian Mount Cemetery, Romney.

Sheriff Heber Parsons said a verdict of suicide was issued by A. L. Russell, acting coroner of Hampshire County, following an investigation by authorities.

Hampshire authorities were at a loss to explain the cause of the death, adding that Mr. Law had been in good health last week after returning from a week's visit at Jackson's Mill.

He was "jolly and full of fun, as usual," one authority said, adding he knew "no reason in the world" for the act.

Mr. Law was found dead of strangulation inside the seasonally used kitchen of Hampshire Park, near Romney, a summer camp for 4-H children of that county, Saturday at 1:20 p. m.

Authorities said the body was suspended by some tent rope which had been run over the rafters of the building when it was discovered by his secretary, Miss Jewell Compton, who driving by with her mother and noticing Mr. Law's car, was parked there, drove into the park to investigate because he had not reported to his office as usual that morning.

The family said he rose early, between 7 and 8 a. m., Saturday and left home without disturbing anyone. They thought he had gone hunting until they found his gun at the home and, beginning to worry, called friends in an attempt to locate him.

State Police Sgt. H. R. Shields and Trooper F. H. Tribett, called Dr. James F. Easton, A. L. Russell, acting coroner, and Sheriff Heber Parsons to assist in the investigation.

Active In Church Work

Mr. Law, a native of Cairo, Ritchie County, W. Va., where he attended public school, came 19 years ago to Romney, where he has faithfully served Hampshire County as agricultural agent. He was a graduate of West Virginia University, Class of 1918. He was superintendent of the Methodist Sunday School and an active member of the Methodist Church. He was at one time president of the Romney Lions Club and served on the board of directors for a number of years.

Mr. Law instigated the movement to build Hampshire Park, a 4-H Camp for Hampshire County children, and was in part responsible for the building of the County Court House Annex and was active in the organizing and building of the Fruit Growers Co-operative Storage Corporation.

His widow, Mrs. Margaret Leone Maust Law, said there was no known reason for his taking his life.

Besides his widow, he is survived by one son, James Newton Law, a student at University of Illinois, Champagne, Ill.; and two daughters, Mrs. Ruth Billups, wife of Robert Billups, at home, and Mrs. Jo Anne Maulden, wife of C. L. Maulden, Kampopolis, N. C., and one brother, Glenn Law, a professor at the University of Illinois, Champagne. Two grandchildren, Barbara Jo Law, and William Dennis Billups, also survive.

Mrs. Violet V. Poffenbarger, 35, wife of Robert L. Poffenbarger, was instantly killed. Hampshire County authorities said, when the car she was driving collided with a car driven by Clyde Nutter, 37, Salem, W. Va.

Ten World War II veterans can be added to the Cumberland Police Department under a GI training program it was indicated here by Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn, who states the department has been approved by the Maryland State Department of Education for such a program.

Chief Flynn explains a letter has been received authorizing the Police Department to place 10 qualified veterans on its roster as probationary-student officers. The department was surveyed and it was found that equipment and qualifications are satisfactory for conducting such a program.

The government will add $30 per month to the pay of probationary officers, now $170 per month, so each veteran in training will receive $200. Two new officers are receiving these benefits now, Flynn said.

The case of Stillman Snow Smith, about 50, indicted for murder in the fatal shooting of his 16-year-old wife, Mrs. Goldie Smith last May, near Flintstone, will be tried before a jury Tuesday. Attorneys appointed by the Court to defend Smith are Estel C. Kelley and Gorman E. Getty, indicated last week they might ask for a change of venue, but have now stated they will plead the case here.

Trial of Mervin C. Willis, 20-year-old veteran, who was arraigned on a charge of murder Saturday and entered a plea of not guilty, is also set for this week. If the Smith case is completed, Willis was indicted in connection with the death of his 18-month-old infant son.

The Court also arraigned James Stump on a larceny charge; Garland Bernard, on false pretenses; and Edgington for larceny.

Edward P. Bragg, 11 Frederick Street, was placed on parole for five years after he pleaded guilty to assaulting his wife last month. Bragg was taken into custody after wounding his wife, Mrs. Myrtle M. Bragg, with a revolver during an argument in their apartment.

Judge Huster commented that newspaper publicity in the Bragg case "made a mountain out of molehill," and that this situation placed the court under criticism when leniency is shown.

"The public does not have all the background in such cases and forms its own opinion," he added.

State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris said Bragg had no prior record and that with the exception of the case before the court was regarded as a good citizen. He said the prosecution was agreeable to a parole.

Bragg was ordered to refrain from intoxicants and be of good behavior. His wife was in court and told Judge Huster she "didn't want anything done to him." The couple said they had both "gotten along" before the incident and since then had been living together harmoniously.

Ralph L. Albright, this city, was paroled for three years on a charge of larceny of articles valued at $65 several months ago from a store-front on Greene Street. He told the court he has been working in a Pittsburgh steel mill and would make restitution. Edward J. Ryan represented the accused.

Fire Chief Recommends Annual Flue Check For Safety-Economy

Chimneys Should Be Checked And Cleaned

An annual inspection to make sure that all flues are in good repair and in good operating condition is worth while both from the standpoint of safety and economy, Chief Field C. Hoenleke, of the Cumberland Fire Department, said yesterday.

Firemen recommend that all chimneys should be checked during the summer and early fall since they know that the first real cold spell brings a deluge of fire flues.

In many cases, where flues are well constructed and in good repair, little damage is done by the ordinary fire flue and firemen almost invariably report "no damage" from such blazes.

But if, as in many of the older structures, the flames escape from between the bricks and set fire to

Goethe Street Men Give Chase To Purse Thief

Police Hold Youth Captured As Suspect

It doesn't pay to do any purse snatching on a dead-end street, especially on Goethe Street, where the male residents seem to be on the alert, according to city police.

Last night at about 8 o'clock Mrs. John Sell, 104 Decatur Street, was taking a walk on Goethe Street when a young man suddenly grabbed her purse containing several hundred dollars.

Mrs. Sell screamed and several men, who live along the street, heard her and ran from their homes. They chased the youthful purse-snatcher toward the cemetery at the end of the street and finally succeeded in surrounding a man hiding in the brush.

One of the several men who circled around the hillside behind the suspect was armed with a rifle. The young man ran back toward Goethe Street, climbed across a garage roof and a porch in an effort to escape.

He was finally captured and held by the residents until police arrived in a matter of minutes after neighbors called them. A search of the area was made, and the purse was recovered near where the suspect was first found in the brush. The money and contents had not been disturbed.

At police headquarters, Assistant Chief B. P. Gaffney said the young man, a 17-year-old youth who gave his name as Harry Stewart, Jr., denied any connection with the purse snatching.

Chief Gaffney said the youth is unemployed, has been rooming on Bedford Street, and is originally from around the Flintstone area. Police said they believe the young man has been in the service, and he told them he was discharged after some trouble.

He repeatedly denied any knowledge of the purse-snatching incident but was committed to jail pending further investigation. Gaffney said the case will probably be referred to Juvenile Court.

Suicide Verdict Issued In Death Of Romney Man

Dennis I. Law Rites Are Planned Today

A funeral service will be conducted this afternoon at 3 o'clock in Romney Methodist Church for Dennis Ison Law, 50, Romney, agricultural agent for Hampshire County for the past 19 years, whose lifeless body was found Saturday afternoon hanging from the rafters of the kitchen of Hampshire Park, which was instrumentally found.

Mr. Law, who was active in civic, church and farm organizations of that area, will be buried in Indian Mount Cemetery, Romney.

Sheriff Heber Parsons said a verdict of suicide was issued by A. L. Russell, acting coroner of Hampshire County, following an investigation by authorities.

Hampshire authorities were at a loss to explain the cause of the death, adding that Mr. Law had been in good health last week after returning from a week's visit at Jackson's Mill.

He was "jolly and full of fun, as usual," one authority said, adding he knew "no reason in the world" for the act.

Mr. Law was found dead of strangulation inside the seasonally used kitchen of Hampshire Park, near Romney, a summer camp for 4-H children of that county, Saturday at 1:20 p. m.

Discover Body

Authorities said the body was suspended by some tent rope which had been run over the rafters of the building when it was discovered by his secretary, Miss Jewell Compton, who driving by with her mother and not seeing Mr. Law's car parked there, drove into the park to investigate because he had not reported to his office as usual that morning.

The family said he rose early, between 7 and 8 a. m. Saturday and left home without disturbing anyone. The thought he had gone hunting until they found his gun at the home and, beginning to worry, called friends in an attempt to locate him.

State Police Sgt. H. R. Shields and Trooper F. H. Tribett, called Dr. James F. Easton, A. L. Russell, acting coroner, and Sheriff Heber Parsons to assist in the investigation.

Active In Church Work

Mr. Law, a native of Cairo, Ritchie County, W. Va., where he attended public school, came 19 years ago to Romney, where he has faithfully served Hampshire County as agricultural agent. He was a graduate of West Virginia University, Class of 1918. He was superintendent of the Methodist Sunday School and an active member of the Methodist Church. He was at one time president of the Romney Lions Club and served on the board of directors for a number of years.

Mr. Law initiated the movement to build Hampshire Park, a 4-H Camp for Hampshire County children, and was in part responsible for the building of the County Court House Annex and was active in the organizing and building of the Fruit Growers Co-operative Storage Corporation.

His widow, Mrs. Margaret Leone Maust Law, said there was no known reason for his taking his life.

Besides his widow, he is survived by one son, James Newton Law, a student at University of Illinois, Champagne, Ill.; and two daughters, Mrs. Ruth Billups, wife of Robert Billups, and Mrs. Jo Anne Maulden, wife of C. L. Maulden, Kannapolis, N. C., and one brother, Glenn Law, a professor at the University of Illinois, Champagne. Two grandchildren, Barbara Jo Law and William Dennis Billups, also survive.
